THE CITY'S CONDITION.

The Wounded at the Hospital.

INQUESTS OVER THE DEAD

Trial of the Rioters in Special Sessions.

TWO HOMICIDES

Harvest Time for Burglars, Pickpockets and Thieves.

Four Hundred Vacancies in the Police Department.

The City was sweltering with heat and as very uncomfortable, but as far as any civil commotion was concerned, cool as a cucumber. Several of the Sixth Ward rioters were tried at the Special Sessions, but not sentenced. The Police did their duty quietly—but the riff-raff had a good time thieving, picking pockets, robbing houses, and doing a small business of "garroting"—for as yet there are none 400 vacancies in the police lists, until which are filled we must expect a deal of this sort of business.

The Police Commissioners.

The Police Commissioners were in session several hours yesterday, but they made only one appointment—that of HAPGANOOD, BRENNAN, of the Eighth Precinct.

The Committee reported favorably on the appointment of a large number, who will be sworn in to-day.

There are only about 400 vacancies in the Department, and these it is proposed to fill during the present week.

Trial of the Fourth of July Rioters.

COURT OF SPECIAL SESSIONS.—July 7.

The following cases, tried at this Court yesterday, are those in which the rioters in the Sixth Ward and elsewhere in the City on the Fourth, were the defendants.

The court-room was filled with people, most of them interested in the trials of the Fourth of July rioters.

Alderman Clancy sat beside the Judges and cross-examined several of the witnesses in the Sixth Ward cases. Metropolitan policemen took the place of their Municipal predecessors as officers of the Court. Officer R. J. Smith, of the Fifteenth Ward, one of the officers of the old Police, who acceded to [illegible] the new order, and opened the Court at 9 A. M.

Owen Gilmartin was complained of by Jas. Irving of the Twentieth Ward Police, for being engaged in the riot in the Sixth Ward on the Fourth of July. He demanded a Jury trial and the case was sent to the General Sessions.

Patrick Mooney was one of the rioters whom Alderman Steele, of the Twentieth Ward Police, arrested at 8 o'clock in the morning, on the 4th of July, on his arrival in Bayard-street on the Fourth. Judge Osborne—Ward has got to say, Mooney? Prisoner—I've got nothing to say. I was just coming along the street peaceably, and I didn't throw any stones. Judge—The officer says he saw you there with stones in your hands, and you threw them. We find you guilty. Convicted—(coming up at the last moment)—Under the circumstances, I think we'll ask for a Jury trial. Judge Osborne—You're too late. The case is disposed of. In these riot cases we'll give the prisoners time to put in affidavits in mitigation of punishment. The prisoner was remanded till Thursday.

Bernard McGovern was charged with riot in the Sixth Ward on the Fourth of July, by Stephen D. Bailey, of No. 160 West Thirty-sixth-street, a special policeman. Judge Osborne—We shall have to discharge this man. The citizens that were to have appeared against him are not here.

Edward Tyrell, Andrew Murray, John Kinney and Kieran Holland, were complained of by officers Roach, Cole, and others of the Metropolitan Police. A man named Pat Leonard had stabbed a man on the Fourth of July, in Twenty-sixth-street, corner of Tenth-avenue. Officer David Roach, and two others, went to arrest him, between 6 and 7 o'clock P. M. Leonard was willing to go with them, and they took him down stairs, and when they reached the front door of the house they found the prisoners, with a large crowd, assembled to oppose their progress. There were probably five hundred persons in the street. Some shouted "Don't go with them, Leonard!" Tyrell shouted "Kill the sons of b——s!" They called on Roach to produce his warrant, and at last the officer pulled out a pistol and said: "Gentlemen, this is a warrant, and if you don't get out of the way it'll be the worse for you." He had a written warrant of arrest in his pocket. The crowd then made a rush, some policemen having come to the assistance of the others, they all proceeded towards the Station-house. The prisoners continued to follow, hooting and defying them, and at last were arrested. Counsel—They didn't do anything. Judge Osborne—Oh, no; none of them did anything. There's been nothing done the last few days—nothing at all. No lives lost, or anything of that kind. We find 'em all guilty and let them stand committed till Tuesday, when they will be brought up for sentence.

Edward Dye, with a bloody handkerchief bound around his head, assaulted Officer John Garbutt, threw a stone at him, &c., in the riot in Bayard-street, July 4, and was not secured until after the officer was compelled to strike him with his club. The Prisoner said he didn't throw any stones. Judge Osborne—You didn't, eh? You'd better tell the truth. Well, we find you guilty, and remand you till Thursday.

Thomas McGarry struck Officer Leonard Schleffin, of the Ninth Ward Police, in the breast, with a paving stone, at the riot, corner of Bayard and Baxter-streets, July 4. Judge Osborne—Well, what did you see of this? Prisoner—Nothing, Sir. Judge—Oh, not you. Of course, you didn't see anything of it. One witness saw the prisoner move his hand, as if throwing something, and then saw a stone strike the officer. Alderman Clancy—Perhaps he was beckoning to some one up the street. Witness—No, he wasn't; he was throwing something. He was found guilty, and remanded till Thursday.

Officer Thomas Dutcher, of the Sixth Ward Police, during the same riot, rushed into a house on Bayard-street to arrest a man. When he brought his prisoner out, Patrick McBride struck him with his fist on the back of the neck. The officer turned around, and with assistance arrested him. McBride was found guilty, and remanded till Thursday for sentence.

Inquests Upon the Dead.

Coroner Connery held inquests at the New-York Hospital yesterday forenoon, upon the bodies of three persons—TIMOTHY HIGGINS and WM. BUCKLEY, the two boys who were shot in Bayard-street, and WM. DUNN, who fell from the window of the City Hall on the morning of the Fourth, and died at 9½ o'clock yesterday morning at the City Hospital.

TESTIMONY.

Peter Dunn, being duly sworn, deposes and says: I live in No. 39 Vandewater-street; deceased is my son; on the 4th of July he went to the City Hall to see the procession; he was standing upon the flag of the window, as he told me himself before he died, and he missed his hold and fell from said window on the flagging below; he told me, as his father, that he blamed nobody for his fall; it was, he said, accidental; he was brought to the New-York Hospital, and died at half past two o'clock this morning.

Dr. Kester made a post mortem examination, and testifies that the patient was brought in about eleven o'clock of the Fourth of July, suffering from a compound fracture of the thigh; he was very much prostrated by the injury, but after the fracture was reduced he rallied to a certain extent, and seemed pretty comfortable; he continued in about the same condition till 7 o'clock last evening, when he suddenly began to sink, and died at half-past two o'clock this morning; his opinion was, that he came to his death from the shock of the injury, aggravated by his previously dissipated habits.

VERDICT.

The Jury rendered a verdict, that WILLIAM DUNN came to his death by accidentally falling out of the window of the City Hall, on the 4th of July, upon the flagging below.

The case of William Buckley was next examined, and the first witness called was John Henry Hoins, who being sworn, deposed: I live at the corner of Mulberry and Bayard streets; I have seen the boy William Buckley, but I did not know him; I saw him between five and six o'clock P. M. on the Fourth of July; he was standing in front and close to me whilst the fight was going on; I saw the row, but the stones were flying so thick I only put my head out of the door once; the boy received the shot in the hip, and immediately cried out, putting his hand on the place, "Oh! I am shot! Oh, dear, take that ball out of me," at the same time falling heavily to the ground; a woman and man who were near caught up the boy and carried him away, and that was the last I saw of him; I saw nobody whom I could recognize, and do not know any one who fired a gun; I wasn't frightened, but when the shot struck the boy I ran inside, and did not look out again.

In reply to the Coroner as to whether he had since heard of any person concerned in the riot, or who fired the guns, he said he had not heard of any one, and did not know who shot the boy.

William Bynes called—I live at No. 61 Mulberry-street; I am the step father of William Buckley; the last I saw of him before his death, he left my place about half past five o'clock on the afternoon of the 4th of July; he did not say where he was going; he was about thirteen years of age; I knew of no ill between him and any one; he was a quiet, peaceable boy; I was standing at the door when I heard the shot; I heard the boy cry out, and I ran to him; I did not see who shot him, but I saw a boy named Patsy Hayes in the crowd that was fighting; I do not know where he lives; I would know him (Hayes) if I saw him again; I think I would be able to recognize others if I saw them; "I saw Hayes with a gun in his hand; he gave the gun to another man."

Dr. Krasor, who made the post mortem examination, states that deceased was brought in on the evening of the Fourth of July, suffering from a wound made apparently by a pistol ball. The wound was situated on the right side, just below the floating ribs, and some four or five inches from the median line; I probed the wound, but could only trace it about an inch; I found blood in the cavity of the abdomen, and evidences of intense peritonitis. I found that the ball had penetrated the walls of the abdomen and the liver; the cavity of the abdomen was filled with blood, but there was no evidence of inflammation; my opinion is that he came to his death from a wound of the liver, produced by a ball.

VERDICT:

That the said TIMOTHY HIGGINS came to his death by a gun-shot wound which penetrated the liver, thereby causing death.

The Coroner gave orders for the arrest of PATSY HAYES, and the man who received the gun from him, if they can be found.

INQUESTS BY CORONER PERRY.

The inquest upon the bodies of those killed at the late riot in Bayard-street, was resumed yesterday morning at the office of the Coroners in Chambers-street, by Dr. PERRY. The following additional evidence was taken:

Leonard Schleffelin, residing at No. 42 Downing-street, being sworn, says: I am a special policeman; about 4½ o'clock about thirty of us were sent to quell a disturbance in the Seventh Ward; while proceeding up Bayard-street we saw a fight going on between the "Bowery Boys" and another party; about the middle of the block, above Baxter-street, they were throwing missiles at each other; before we reached that place we were met, about half a block below, by a party of men numbering about five hundred, who appeared to be of the same party that were attacking the Bowery Boys; this crowd assailed us; they threw stones and other missiles at us; we "mixed in" with the crowd; some of us fired guns; I threw a stone, and then ran into No. 58 Baxter-street; we went in to arrest him, and while coming out again some one threw a stone, which hit me in the head; I was stunned by the blow, and was taken to the office in White-street; I have ascertained that his name is Thomas McGeary; while we were there pistols were fired, and brick-bats were thrown from the houses; I could not recognize any persons in the crowd.

William Evens, a special policeman, being duly sworn, deposed: I was with Schleffelin at the time of the assault; I recognize McGeary as one who threw a stone.

William Y. Taft, a special policeman, residing at No. 44 Horatio-street, being sworn, testified as follows: About half past four o'clock some twenty-six men, myself included, were sent from White-street to the Seventh Ward; as we turned into Bayard-street we were attacked by a crowd of people, who threw stones and other missiles at us; we at first drove them away some distance, when they got a reinforcement, and returning to the assault, compelled us to retreat; we had passed through to the upper side of the crowd, when we were met by a number of the Bowery Boys, who intimated that they wished to assist us; they going with us, we turned again upon the mob, and defended ourselves as well as we could; many of our men were wounded; we were again forced to retreat and remove our wounded.

Question by the Coroner—Did the police all wear badges, so that they could be easily recognized? A.—They did, Sir.

Q.—Did you recognize anybody in the crowd? A.—Not one; after the last assault, all of us that were not disabled went on to the Seventh Ward.

William Hess, being duly sworn, deposed: I am a special policeman, and reside at No. 76 Washington-street. I went up Bayard-street with some thirty or forty men to arrest a squad of police who were being there attacked. I arrested a person who was throwing stones at the policemen, and conveyed him to the Fifth Ward Station-house.

Richard Van Vechten, residing at No. 7 Chrystie-street, being duly sworn, deposed, and says: I recognize the prisoner, McGeary, as the one who was arrested by Wm. Baw; I also recognize Thomas McGann as one of the rioters arrested on the same occasion.

Israel Brower, a regular policeman, being sworn, said: I recognize the larger of the two dead who were taken to White-street to have been one of the leaders in the riot in Bayard-street on the 4th; he belonged to what were called the "Dead Rabbits;" he was urging on the rioters.

John Garbutt, residing at No. 456 Eighth-avenue, being duly sworn, says: I am one of the Special Police; I was at Bayard-street on duty on the Fourth; I arrested a person by the name of Edward Dye, who had stones in his hands at the time, and who, I believe, threw a stone which had just previously struck an officer; he was conveyed to the Tombs.

John B. Pilgrim, being sworn, says: I am one of the Special Police; I reside at No. 1 Spring-street; I was at the scene of the riot in Bayard-street, corner of Mulberry, at six o'clock, of the Fourth; I arrested a man whose name I ascertained to be Frank Fitzpatrick; he had two brick-bats in his hands; he struck at me with one; I warded off the blow, and seized him and took him to No. 88 White-street, and thence to Franklin-street.

J. C. Cohen, residing at No. 21 Columbia-street, being sworn, says: I was at the riot of the Fourth as reporter; while there, I saw a young man who was about twenty years of age, raise a gun deliberately and shoot a man, supposed to be Bernard, while deceased was throwing bricks at the crowd; some person in the crowd exclaimed that "Mac shot the fellow;" I also saw the Italian boy fall; he was shot in the eye; I saw several other persons injured, but I cannot recognize any of the rioters.

Thomas Dutcher, residing at No. 25 West Twenty-ninth-street, being sworn, says: I am of the Special Police; was in Bayard-street on the Fourth; while arresting a rioter was attacked by another man, who hit me with a brick in the back; I was forced to release my prisoner, but arrested the man who struck me, and, with the assistance of Policeman Ellis, took him to the Tombs; I have since ascertained his name to be James McBride.

Stephen D. Baily, residing at No. 160 West Thirty-eighth-street, being sworn, says: I am Special policeman; I was at Bayard street on the Fourth; at six o'clock I made an arrest of a young man who was pushed on me by others; his name was Barnard McGlynn; I did not see him take any part in the affair.

There being no other witnesses present, the further hearing of the case was adjourned till 9 o'clock this morning.

Coroner Connery Looking for an Ante-Mortem.

Just as Coroner CONNERY had impanelled a jury for the inquest upon a lad at the New-York Hospital, he received information that there was a dying man in Worth-street whose ante mortem it was necessary to take immediately; his name was JOHN SMITH, and he was to be found "next door to the church." Accordingly the Coroner, with two policemen, two reporters and one other citizen started for the place. Stopping at the house next below the Eastern depot, which used to be a church, Mr. CONNERY interrogated an Irish girl who stood holding a baby at the window, if there was a "corpse" about to that house. The question was repeated by the Coroner, and then in turn by the whole six before Biddy paid the slightest attention to the crowd opposite, but replied, and then, instead of answering the question, she put Coroner Connery was informed that the man was not dead, and would not make any ante; he drove to the house and found the man sitting up in bed. He was conscious when he took his statement, but died before the Coroner left the house.

The following evidence was taken:

Joseph Dunlap, residing at No. 113 Hester-street, being sworn, says: Deceased was my nephew; he was 18½ years old; on Friday morning, July 3, about 9 o'clock, deceased came into the house and said the was stabbed; he showed me where he was stabbed; it was in the abdomen; he did not say who stabbed him; I sent him to the Hospital immediately; I heard that a boy that attended me for the Hessians, at No. 94 Baxter-street, was the one who stabbed him (deceased); I went to his place and saw the prisoner; he acknowledged having stabbed deceased; I searched him and found the pocket-knife now shown upon his person; he said that was the knife he stabbed him with; I took him to the Station-House; Justice Welsh committed him for examination; I cannot say further.

Wm. Hideman, residing at No. 176 Hester-street, being sworn, says: I work in the grocery store; on said day; on Friday morning last I saw the deceased come out of a grocery store on the corner of Hester and Mulberry streets; he had some eggs in a paper at the same time; the prisoner came out of the cellar of 174 Hester-street; he had a dog with him; the deceased and prisoner appeared to have some words; I could not understand what they said, but I thought that they were angry from the manner of their speaking; deceased laid down the eggs and went towards the prisoner, and slapped the prisoner a couple of times on the head; he then came back towards his house and picked up the eggs; deceased was followed immediately by the prisoner, and then I heard deceased say, "I am stabbed;" I did not see prisoner stab deceased, but I heard the deceased say to a man who came up, that the prisoner had stabbed him, and showed his wounds to the latter.

Mary Keeler being sworn, says: Deceased was my son; on Friday morning last, about nine o'clock, I sent him out for some eggs; he returned to the door in a few moments; his sister ran into the house, and said there was a boy fighting with "Billy," meaning deceased, on the street; I ran out and saw deceased with a crowd around him; I also saw the prisoner; deceased told me that this boy, the prisoner, set his dog at him, and that he, the deceased, slapped the prisoner in the face; I made him go into the house, not thinking that there was anything serious with him, but when he got to the foot of the stairs he turned around, and said: "Mother, I am stabbed; catch that boy"—he is the one who stabbed me."

George E. S. Keeler, M. D., being sworn, deposes and says that deceased was brought to the Hospital on the third day of July, 1857, suffering from a penetrating wound of the abdomen, through which a small portion of omentum protruded; this was reduced and the wound closed, &c.; no symptoms of inflammation came on till some ten hours after admission, when he began to complain of pain around the wound, and it was evident that peritonitis was set up; the usual treatment was resorted to, but without success, and he grew gradually worse till about ten o'clock on the morning of the 6th, when he died; my opinion is that he came to his death from peritonitis, supervening upon the wound in the abdomen.

James P. Kennedy (the prisoner) being examined, said: "I am fourteen years old; born in Ireland; I reside at No. 174 Hester-street; I am a bar-attender; on Friday morning, July 3, 1857, about nine o'clock, I was coming down Hester-street, towards Mulberry-street, with a large dog and a little one; the little one run up an alley-way, and I stood calling it, when deceased was standing near his own door, asked me what I was looking at; I said it's none of your business; I had a penknife in my hand; deceased ran towards me and struck me in the face and head; I put out the knife to guard myself; I thought to frighten him off; I don't know whether I stabbed him or not."

Kennedy was thereupon committed to answer.

POCKET-PICKING.—Pickpockets were busy yesterday among a crowd that had assembled at the corner of Broadway and Barclay-street, to listen to the eloquence of the famous razor-strop man, who had there taken a stand to dispose of his wares. Jeremiah D. Swift, residing at No. 11 Perry-street, was relieved of a watch valued at $100; and Wm. H. Millener, of No. 334 Broadway, lost a very valuable watch, which had been presented to him by the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of this State. The robbed parties reported their loss to Deputy Carpenter, who detailed Sergeant Lefferts to investigate the matter. This officer, assisted by Mr. Stoles, of the special force, proceeded to the place where the robberies had been committed, and arrested on suspicion two "knucks," who gave their names as John Donnelly and Thomas Wilson.

A gentleman residing in Williamsburg, had a valuable watch stole from him yesterday, while standing at the Peck-slip ferry.

The Astor-place Riot.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

The Editor of the Herald, in his paper of Tuesday, lays the blame of the firing at the above riot upon Recorder TALLMADGE, when it is well known that the military were compelled to fire strictly in self-defence.

The person who should be held responsible for that great sacrifice of human life is GEORGE W. MATSELL, Chief of Police at the time, he having two days' notice of the intention to commit a riot. He was personally present in the Opera House when the first missile was thrown, and when officer BOWRIE called to him, saying, "Chief, shall I take him?" the Chief replied, "No; spot him!" JUSTICE.

FIRE IN BROADWAY.—A fire was discovered about 9 o'clock Monday night, in the Belmont House, corner of Broadway and Prince-street, $7,000 damage was done; $500 to building and $500 to furniture. Mrs. DEARIN, the occupant of the building, is insured for $3,000. The fire is supposed to have been caused by an incendiary.

YELLOW FEVER AT NEW-ORLEANS.—The Eagle Rob papers of New-Orleans say nothing about the yellow fever, but the French journal L'Orleanais, of June 29, mentions a well marked case which had proved fatal, at the Hospital in Orleans-street. The victim was a young Frenchman, named LOUIS MAILLOU, aged 18, who had been more than two years in New-Orleans. He had no communication with the sick in the yellow fever wards, and the origin of the disease is a puzzle for the physicians.
